

- Adult reading habits, 59
Attentional assistance needs at different grade and reading proficiency levels, 1
Beginning readers, and language of instruction, 37
Books as they reflect the reader, 51
Comprehension failure in grades six and seven, resolving through text lookbacks, 221
Comprehension questions in fourth grade readers, comparing types of, 43
Content teachers' predictions of students' knowledge of specific words, 211
Cues, and potential confusion, 161
Dual language reading program, and the reading ability of Puerto Rican students, 233
Elementary students' internalization of selected vowel patterns, 17
English as a second language, phonological contrasts and word-decoding skills of the reader of, 7
Formal operational thought and reading, 375
Gates-McGinitie Reading Test, readability of, 199
Guided reading in poetry combining aesthetic appreciation and skills, 261
Language of instruction, and beginning readers, 37
Listening comprehension, the validity of the potential level via, 271
Literacy development, in middle-class preschool children, 105
Low-level readers in the junior high school, the impact of I/T/A on, 303
Main idea comprehension, by children, 167
Motivating students to actively engage in reading, 143
Norm-referenced tests of reading comprehension, 131
Oral reading, intrasentence contextual facilitation in, 91
Parents as tutors, 117
Phonological contrasts skills, of the reader of English as a second language, 7

Prereading study strategies, with secondary and college students, 277

Preservice education in reading,
25

Reading and television, 265

Reading and writing, promotion
through books, 347

Reading comprehension,
improving through philosophy
for children, 239
metacognitive training to improve, 365

norm-referenced tests of, 131

Reading specialists, alternative roles for, 149

Research in reading, synthesizing,
325

Studying behavior of expert adult readers, 311

Television and reading, 265

Trade books, to enhance a reading program, 355

Vocabulary acquisition, subjective approach to, 155

Vocational subjects, reading ability and classroom performance
in, 339

Word-decoding skills, of the reader of English as a second language, 7

Word recognition, improving, 247

